- Sometimes, storm drains get clogged. When they're full of litter, leaves, and other debris, they can't do their job preventing flooding, minimizing icy patches in the winter, and filtering large pollutants from stormwater before it drains into our waterways. - One simple way you can volunteer is to adopt a storm drain in your neighborhood! Check the drain BEFORE a rain event! Use a rake or broom to keep leaves and other materials clear of the drain. In winter, snow and ice can block the drain, so when possible, remove snow and ice to create a one-foot path along the curb leading to the drain. Pollutants from yards and streets accumulate in the snow and ice over the winter and then rush into drains and nearby streams during spring thaws.

- Are there many storm drains that are clogged in your neighborhood? Organize a Stormwater Action Team (SWAT) event to make an even larger impact with neighbors, family, and friends. Email info@thewhiteriveralliance.org for more information on how to get started.

- Fall is the season when our storm drains get clogged with falling leaves! Most of the time, the storm drains are maintained by surrounding communities. If you have drainage issues, you can always contact your city or local municipality to report your concerns. In the meantime, you can clean up visible debris and leaves while you do lawn maintenance.
